COMMENTS FROM AUDIENCE / CORRESPONDENCE

There were noticeable concerns about coaching experience and preparedness. At times, it appeared that players were not consistently being taught appropriate skills or fundamentals needed for their development. Ensuring that coaches are well-equipped to teach age-appropriate techniques is essential for both player growth and safety. There were concerns about fairness in playing time. A more transparent and balanced approach would help ensure that all players feel valued and have equal opportunities to participate and improve. Parent respectfully ask the board to review current coaching standards and consider implementing measures such as additional training, clearer guidelines, or oversight to support a more positive and development-focused environment.
